Because
Craftsmanship
Matters.

✓ Highest Quality Materials

We work primarily, though not exclusively, with Douglas Fir, which can only be found in the Pacific Northwest. It is the highest-rated of all the North American softwoods in both strength-to-weight ratio and in stiffness. This straight, fine-grained wood — with its warm, reddish brown colors — sets the standard by which all other framing materials are measured.

✓ On schedule, Off-site

Because the heavy timber trusses and other components are produced in our workshop, all the specialized tools that are needed for first-class fabrication are at hand and quality control is maximized. The finished product is then stored at our facility until the builder is ready to take delivery, saving precious time and space at the job-site.

✓ Experience & Reputation

Each Western Woodwright craftsman is an accomplished builder who has chosen to specialize in the creation of timber components of exceptional quality and beauty. This shared background allows us a unique perspective of the responsibilities and expectations placed upon the builder. We understand, firsthand, the demands of satisfying your client, while operating an efficient and profitable business.
